

Dr. Margaret Taplin is a part-time education consultant, dividing her time between Hong Kong and Tasmania, Australia. She also provides an editing service for academic authors.

Previously Dr. Taplin specialized in mathematics education at the University of Tasmania and the University of Hong Kong, and later in research in distance and adult learning at the Open University of Hong Kong. She has numerous refereed publications in both of these areas, including several books. Dr. Taplin's current research interest is in the field of education in human values and she is a consultant to several normal universities and education bureaus in mainland China in this field.