

Dialogues between Veteran and Aspiring Researchers

The Graduate School is pleased to offer opportunities for informal interactions between postgraduate students and visiting professors. Through these exchanges, prominent researchers will share their immense experience and insights in becoming successful academics and beyond, and students are encouraged to ask questions about how to be better prepared for a career in academia or an alternative academic path.

Please find below the details of the coming session:

Professor Jeremy Jackson

Emeritus, Smithsonian Institution

Emeritus, Scripps Institution of Oceanography, University of California, San Diego

Professor Nancy Knowlton

Sant Chair in Marine Science

National Museum of Natural History, Smithsonian Institution, USA

Further to their inspiring sharing last year on how they had been successfully combining research, programme development and public outreach over the years, in the coming session, they will focus on ‘making yourself heard’. Being a successful scientist involves not only answering important questions, but also conveying what one has discovered in a compelling way to scientists and often non-scientists outside one’s area of expertise. Professors Jackson and Knowlton will share their thoughts on the importance of and strategies for ensuring that our colleagues and others are aware of the significance of what we do.

Date and Time:

Mar 27, 2018 (Tue), 12:45 pm to 1:45 pm

Venue:

Room P503, Level P5 (one level below Wang Gungwu Lecture Hall), Graduate House
